ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

MEETING 12 MARCH 2015

REPORT BY SECRETARY TO THE ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

UPDATE REPORT

Introduction

1. The purpose of this report is to provide a regular update to the Commission on significant recent activity relating to local government, as well as issues of relevance or interest across the wider public sector.

2. The regular Controller of Audit report to the Commission which updates the Commission on his activity complements this report. The Commission’s Financial Audit and Assurance Committee also receives a more detailed update on issues relating to local government. Further, detailed news in relation to media coverage of recently published reports and local government activity is provided in the media summaries produced by Audit Scotland’s Communications Team following publication or at the appropriate time.

3. The information featured is also available on the Accounts Commission member portal. Hyperlinks are provided in the electronic version of this report for ease of reference.

Commission business

Impact of recent reports

4. An overview of local government in Scotland 2015 was published on 5 March 2015. The report has attracted substantial media coverage. It featured on the front page and inside the Herald and the Guardian referred to it as part of a wider investigation into local government debt levels across the UK. There was also good broadcast coverage, with lead or second items on BBC Scotland radio and TV bulletins and BBC Online. There was wide reaction including Scottish Labour (attacking the Scottish Government for underfunding local government); Scottish Government stating that the local government settlement was a good one; and a positive welcome from CoSLA.

5. As reported to previous meetings of the Accounts Commission, the School Education report, published on 19 June 2014, continues to attract significant interest from both the media and policy stakeholders in local government and the policy area. The School Education audit team is continuing its programme of stakeholder engagement and support to maximise its impact. Most recently, on 11 February, an elected member seminar at South Ayrshire Council was held. The majority of members attended and engaged actively in the event. Feedback from the Director of Education reported that it had been very well received and had been particularly helpful as regards strengthening the scrutiny role of members. Further seminars are planned at Angus, Argyll and Bute, Orkney and Midlothian councils. During February 2015, the report generated 828 downloads. As previously indicated a report reviewing the completed engagement programme will be presented to a future meeting later in the year.
6. An interview published on 24 February in Holyrood magazine with Andrew Burns, Leader of City of Edinburgh Council, refers to the Commission’s report on Best Value audit of the Council, published on 4 December 2014. Councillor Burns states that “the situation is really quite stark for us… It is not anywhere close to the levels of savings that English local authorities are having to find, for example. I’m grateful for that but to take £22 million out of a billion pound budget is a challenge.. It is difficult, there’s no point in denying that there will be an impact on some service areas [but] we’ve taken a political decision to prioritise certain areas and that squeezes out problems elsewhere.”

Other Commission business

7. On 23 February 2015, Commission members met with representatives of Orkney Community Planning Partnership (CPP) to discuss the Commission’s report on Orkney CPP published on 19 November 2014.

8. As indicated in my report to the Commission’s January meeting, members of the Commission met representatives of South Ayrshire Council on 3 March 2015 to discuss the recent report of the Best Value audit of the council, published on 18 December 2014.

9. On 9 March 2015, the Chair and Commission members will meet with representatives of the West Lothian Community Planning Partnership Board to discuss the report on the West Lothian CPP published on 23 October 2015.

10. At a meeting between the Scottish Parliament Committee Conveners and the First Minister held on 18 February 2015, Paul Martin MSP (Convener, Public Audit Committee) asked the First Minister the following question: “you will be aware that the number of public services that are delivered by the third sector, charities and so-called arm’s length companies has increased significantly over the past number of years. Those organisations do not come under the audit framework of the Auditor General for Scotland. Is that something that you and the Scottish Government are looking at?”. In her written response to Paul Martin MSP, it is anticipated that the First Minister will set out the Commission’s responsibilities in this regard and state that she is aware that the Commission has commenced work in this regard (as decided at the Commission’s January meeting).

11. The Accounts Commission and Audit Scotland have been included in the Scottish Government’s consultation on proposed draft Climate Change (Reporting on Climate Change Duties) (Scotland) Order 2015, and have been issued with details. This is because both bodies are listed as major public bodies in relation to the proposals. The defining criteria for inclusion as major public bodies relate to number of employees, expenditure, influence and carbon footprint. With regard to the Accounts Commission specifically, only the ‘influence’ criterion would be applicable, but it would nevertheless be appropriate for a response to be submitted by the Commission. To this end, I will share the terms of the response with the Commission. The consultation runs from 20 February to 29 May 2015. More information on the consultation is available at the Scottish Government website.

12. On 4 March, the Chair and the Auditor General gave evidence to the Scottish Parliament’s Finance Committee on preventative spending.
Auditor General for Scotland:

13. A report on The Government’s purchase of Glasgow Prestwick Airport was published on 24 February 2015. The report generated strong print and broadcast coverage. It was also subject of lengthy questioning of the Auditor General by the Public Audit Committee. Since publication the report generated 569 downloads and 23 listens to the podcast.

14. On 26 February 2015, the Superfast broadband for Scotland was published. Media interest to date has been lighter than anticipated, with no significant media enquiries. The majority of the mainstream press coverage followed a Press Association copy top line that much of the Highlands will receive lower speeds than the rest of Scotland. Specialist technical news websites have covered the report extensively, and included some analysis on the findings. Since publication, the report has received 637 downloads and 13 podcast listens.

Issues affecting local government

Scottish Government:

15. As I reported to the Commission’s January meeting, Marco Biagi MSP, Local Government Minister, has been undertaking a series of introductory meetings with all councils. The following meetings took place during January and February 2015. No further meetings have been scheduled at this time:

- Aberdeenshire Council – 16 February
- Angus Council – 17 February
- Dundee Council – 17 February

16. On 20 February 2015, the Scottish Government announced the appointment of members to the Commission on Local Tax Reform which will consider fairer systems of local taxation. Eleven representatives of political parties and the finance, law and advice sectors will examine alternatives to the council tax to fund local government services. The Commission will be chaired jointly by Marco Biagi MSP, Local Government Minister and Councillor David O’Neill, President of COSLA. The first meeting of the Commission was held on 23 February 2015 and it will report to the Scottish Government and COSLA in the Autumn.

17. In an announcement by Deputy First Minister and Finance Secretary John Swinney on 24 February 2015, it was confirmed that all 32 councils had agreed to freeze in their council tax payments for the eighth consecutive year. More details of the announcement are available at the Scottish Government’s website.

18. On 27 February 2015 First Minister Nicola Sturgeon marked her first 100 days in the role. Details of the statement by the First Minister marking this milestone can read at the Scottish Government’s website.
19. Figures for emergency department weekly activity and waiting times in Scotland were published for the first time on 3 March 2015. The weekly publication of these figures had been announced by the Chief Statistician on 17 February 2015. The new statistics cover total attendances and waiting times for the 32 Emergency Departments in Scotland. The figures, which cover week ending 22 February 2015, indicate that 86.1 per cent of attendances to Emergency Departments were seen and subsequently admitted, transferred or discharged within 4 hours. More information is available at the Scottish Government’s website.

Chamber Proceedings:

20. A number of major issues, such as the continuing issue of Police Scotland “stop and search strategy” tactics, the NHS and energy, have dominated First Minister’s Questions over the last few weeks. Some of these are summarised below.

21. On 19 February 2015, Kezia Dugdale MSP led for the opposition on childcare, highlighting a report suggesting that Scottish local authorities were not performing as well as in England on capacity and criticising the time taken to fulfil pledges. The First Minister stressed that progress was being made but recognised that more work needed to be done, particularly in relation to ensuring access. She compared the hours provided with the situation under Labour, suggesting that childcare had not been a priority for Labour in Budget discussions with John Swinney, although this was disputed by Kezia Dugdale.

22. Calls from parents at St Joseph’s Primary in Milngavie, which is facing amalgamation, to remove the school from council-control were raised by Ruth Davidson, who went on to state the need for a “parent power law” on such matters. The First Minister said she was happy to discuss the issue with parents but suggested the policy was not popular. She went on to stress the need to close the attainment gap and maintain teacher numbers.

23. Cara Hilton MSP (Labour) called for politicians to unite to secure the future of Longannet Power Station, the First Minister advised that she had written in this regard to the Prime Minister. She went on to stress the importance of the power station and the need for a response from the UK Government.

24. Alison Johnstone MSP (Green) queried whether requests to restore the ownership of Parliament House in Edinburgh from the Scottish Government to City of Edinburgh Council would be considered. The First Minister said she believed this was not a fault of the Scottish Government and that the question may need to be redirected to the Council. She said she would ask Local Government Minister Marco Biagi to examine the issue.

25. The issue of stop-and-search was raised by Willie Rennie MSP (Liberal Democrat), who expressed concerns at the conduct of senior police officers. The First Minister highlighted that a meeting was taking place in Parliament later in the day with the Chief Constable and said she supported the release of data to allow scrutiny. Willie Rennie suggested trust in police had been “shattered”, with the First Minister recognising information had been “unsatisfactory”, but stressing she had total trust in the police.

26. The First Minister stated the Scottish Government had no plans to delay the implementation of the new Advanced Higher in response to a question from Iain Gray MSP (Labour). On calls made by unions for a delay, the First Minister said the level of change for Advanced Highers was less than that for Highers and noted support that was available.

27. At First Minister Questions of 26 February 2015, Kezia Dugdale MSP raised several directly-quoted concerns from NHS staff about lack of resources and treatment times, including Dr Martin McKechnie from the Royal College of Emergency Medicine. Nicola Sturgeon acknowledged that “of course more could be done” but insisted that resources were being provided and Labour was “doing a disservice” to NHS staff in raising concerns. The First Minister also compared NHS statistics from Labour’s record in office, insisting that acute beds had fallen in that time and were gradually increasing now.

28. Allegations that Scottish Government officials along with Police Scotland had deliberately delayed the publication of PhD research on stop and search statistics were raised by Alison McInnes MSP (Liberal Democrat). The First Minister denied there had been collusion and insisted that such email exchanges with academics were a normal occurrence where research had been funded by the Scottish Government. In response to Elaine Murray MSP (Labour), the First Minister said she continued to have confidence in the Chief Constable, Sir Stephen House.

29. Jim Eadie MSP (SNP) asked about education good practice and the Scottish Attainment Challenge. Iain Gray MSP asked a follow-up on the slow pace of recruitment of local attainment advisers and Mary Scanlon expressed concern that there was a lack of robust assessment of the impact of the spending, quoting Audit Scotland.

30. Jenny Marra MSP (Labour) asked about waiting times for young people accessing mental health services, referring to the specific situation in Tayside. They agreed that waits were unacceptable but insisted that NHS Tayside had hired nine staff to deal with shortfalls and 50% of boards were meeting 18 week treatment target. As a supplementary, Jim Hume MSP (Liberal Democrat) raised a concern that GPs were simply not referring patients due to concerns about unavailability of mental health therapies.

COSLA, Improvement Service etc.:

51. As previously reported, the COSLA 2015 conference will take place on 12 and 13 March 2015 at Crieff Hydro Hotel. The conference which is entitled Local Governance: Setting the Agenda, will explore the key challenges facing Local Government and how best meet these challenges by being proactive in setting the agenda. The 2015 event will also examine how councils and their partners can build on the work of the Commission on Strengthening Local Democracy and the Smith Commission to face future demographic and economic changes.

Current activity and news in local government:

Individual councils:

52. The following paragraphs highlight current activity and news occurring in local government over the previous month as well as developing issues. The items are drawn from a range of sources including news articles, websites and media summaries. Some of the more significant issues are highlighted in the following sections.

53. On 13 February 2015, the Herald reported that councils had reached agreement with the Scottish Government to maintain teacher numbers at their present levels.

54. On 4 March 2015, Aberdeen City Council formally confirmed its resignation from COSLA and to join a new block of four local authorities, called the Scottish Local Government Partnership. The council cites what it views as the poor deal in funding allocations it receives from the Scottish government. Aberdeen City Council will join with Glasgow, Renfrewshire and South Lanarkshire – all Labour-led administrations. Jenny Laing, leader of Aberdeen City Council, will act as convener of the new body. More details are available at BBC Online.

55. Issues surrounding Argyll and Bute Council continue to generate correspondence and media interest. I advised in my previous report about the interest generated around the Council’s decision to reject a community buy out bid for the former outdoor education centre at Castle Toward. An Audit Scotland response to media inquiries commented that: “We continue to closely monitor events in Argyll and Bute. The Accounts Commission has asked for a report from the Controller of Audit by the end of this year with a specific focus on roles and relationships (including between members and officers), scrutiny, and political management arrangements. Work on this is already under way. Our teams are regularly onsite in Argyll and Bute and we continue to liaise closely with colleagues in other inspectorates. We have looked at the Council’s decision on Castle Toward and we don’t intend to carry out any further audit work in relation to this, although our interest in the processes around decision making more widely at the council continues.”

56. Dame Sue Bruce, chief executive of Edinburgh City Council, announced on 5 March that she is to retire from local government service. She plans to leave her post when she turns 60 in October.

Scrutiny, inspection, regulatory and related bodies

Scottish Police Authority (SPA):

57. An additional special board meeting was held on 13 February 2015 in Glasgow to seek clarification of recent issues surrounding the past and future use of the stop and search tactic in Scotland. The purpose of the meeting was to address two key issues:

- Scrutiny of the performance of Police Scotland in relation to non-statutory stop and search of children under 12; and
- An initial examination of the options, alternatives and implications of ending the use of non-statutory stop and search as a whole.

58. Chief Constable Sir Stephen House, and Deputy Chief Constable Rose Fitzpatrick were questioned on the accuracy of the information released by Police Scotland to the media and reported widely, the reasons for not fulfilling the commitment to end such searches, and the anticipated timescale when Police Scotland will meet this commitment. More information on the meeting is available at the SPA website.

Her Majesty’s inspectorate of Constabulary of Scotland (HMICS):

59. On 11 February 2015, it was announced that the fieldwork phase of the joint review by HMICS and Care Inspectorate of Multi Agency Public Protection Arrangements, (MAPPA) would take place between April and June 2015. MAPPA enables police, local authorities, the prison service and health boards to jointly assess and manage the way risks posed by registered sex offenders while in custody, after release from a custodial sentence or on a community-based court disposal. A joint report of the review findings, along with any recommendations, will be published in the Autumn. More details are available on HMICS website.

Scottish Public Sector Ombudsman (SPSO):

60. The SPSO News – February was published on 18 February 2015. The February newsletter summarises January 2014 case numbers, outlines investigations reports, recent SPSO news and highlights emerging issues, including in this month’s edition, a summary of an investigation report into a complaint relating to planning enforcement against South Ayrshire Council. More information on the SPSO’s work, including detailed Investigations and decision reports, is available on the Our findings webpage. More detailed intelligence from the SPSO is considered routinely by the Financial Audit and Assurance Committee.

Commissioner for Ethical Standards in Public Life in Scotland:

61. Since the previous meeting of the Commission, no decisions on complaints relating to councillors were published by the Commissioner. In cases where the Commissioner concludes that the Code had been contravened the compliant is referred to the Standards Commission for Scotland for further investigation. More detailed intelligence from the Commissioner is considered routinely by the Financial Audit and Assurance Committee.

Standards Commission for Scotland:

62. Over the period 12 February 2015 to 3 March 2015, the Standards Commission held two hearings to investigate a complaint (referred from the Commissioner) against Councillor George Black, West Dunbartonshire Council which took place on 17 and 18 February 2015. A previous complaint against Councillor Black had been upheld in June 2014 and a sanction of suspension had been applied. and a complaint against eight councillors from Aberdeen City Council, namely: Councillors Barney Crockett, Neil Cooney, Fraser Forsyth, Ross Grant, Jenny Laing, Ross Thomson and Willie Young, which began on 11 February 2015. As of 4 March 2015, the decisions of the hearing panels had not yet been published.

63. The Commission will hold future hearings to consider complaints against Councillor Corrie McChord, Stirling Council, (24 March 2015) and Councillor Andy Doig, Renfrewshire Council (to be announced).

Other UK Audit Bodies

National Audit Office:

64. On 13 February 2015, the NAO published Inspection: A comparative study. The report presents the findings of a review of inspectorates in the home affairs and justice sector. It acknowledges the vital role played by inspectorates but identifies inconsistency in the extent to which they are independent of government and in their reporting arrangements, which can limit their impact. More details are available on NAO’s website.

65. The role of prescribed persons was published on 27 February 2015. It concludes that the wider government needs to do more to understand the experience of whistleblowers and to act where whistleblowers suffer detriment. Particular efforts should be directed to reducing the gap between the actions of prescribed persons and whistleblowers’ expectations. Prescribed persons, as defined under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998, are independent bodies or individuals that can be approached by whistleblowers where an approach to their employers would not be appropriate. Prescribed persons usually have an authoritative relationship with a whistleblower’s organisation and may be regulatory or legislative bodies, central government departments, arm’s length bodies or charities and include all Members of Parliament. More details can be found on NAO’s website.

66. Also published on 27 February 2015, a guide entitled Financial services: regulation, redress and advice overview 2014 provides an accessible overview of the financial services regulation, redress and advice bodies, utilising NAO’s published work. More details of the guide are available at the NAO website. It covers:

- the responsibilities five financial services regulation, redress and advice bodies and how they spend their money;
- Interaction and cooperation between the bodies;
- recent findings and future challenges for the bodies; and
- case studies on the impact of payment protection insurance mis-selling on the Financial Ombudsman Service and the financial crisis on the Financial Services Compensation Scheme
Westminster

Public Accounts Committee:

67. On 6 February 2014, the Committee published Tax avoidance: the role of large accountancy firms (follow-up) as apart of its ongoing inquiry. The critical report commented that large accountancy firms advise multinational companies on complex strategies and contrived structures which do not reflect the substance of their businesses and are instead designed to avoid tax. Following publication of leaked documents detailing some of the tax advice it has given to its multinational clients, the Committee took further evidence from PriceWaterhouseCoopers (PwC). It concluded that the widespread promotion of such schemes by PwC to numerous clients, based on artificially diverting profits to Luxembourg through intra-company loans, constituted the promotion of large-scale tax avoidance. It further concluded that Government needs to take a more active role in regulating the tax industry. In particular, HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC) needs to be more proactive and robust in challenging the advice being given by accountancy firms to clients, ensuring that tax liabilities reflect the locale of where companies conduct their business, and introducing a new code of conduct for all tax advisers. More information is available on the Committee’s website.

68. On 25 February 2015, Universal Credit: progress update was published. The report noted that despite the significant investment (£700 million) in Department for Work & Pensions in Universal Credit since the programme began in 2010, little progress has been achieved on the front line. Fewer than 18,000 people had claimed it by October 2014, although the Department expects this to rise significantly by February 2016. The report recommends that the Department sets out clearly what it has really gained from its spending so far, including from the piloting of the programme, and from the investment in live service IT systems. More information is available on the Committee’s website.

69. Planning for the Better Care Fund was published on 26 February 2015. The report presents the findings on its investigation of the Better Care Fund intended to transform local health and social care services by pooling resources. However, it finds that with the redesign of the Fund after April 2014, the priority has shifted from improving local services through integration to protecting NHS resources. The Committee concluded that NHS spending was judged a higher priority than supporting adult social care. The report recommends that in future spending discussions, departments and the Treasury must define unambiguously service and savings requirements, and ensure they are clearly, consistently and transparently presented to all parties. More information is available on the Committee’s website.

Information and Intelligence

70. A consultation on the CIPFA/SOLACE Framework Delivering Good Governance in Local Government was launched on 12 February 2015, concluding on 16 March 2015. The aim of the consultation is to ascertain how it has been working in practice, to update the Framework and develop revised guidance in 2015. Further details of the consultation including the consultation documents can be found at the CIPFA website. While the Commission will not be responding to the consultation directly, it has an interest in the matter and will maintain a watching brief.

71. On 3 March 2015, Fiscal Affairs Scotland published its report Local government funding challenges. The report comments that demand for services are growing at time while constraints on council budgets continue. It suggests this may lead to increased pressure on the provision of non-statutory services such as leisure.

Conclusion

72. The Commission is invited to consider and note this report.

Paul Reilly
Secretary to the Accounts Commission
5 March 2015
Introduction

1. This report introduces a briefing paper by the Director of Performance Audit and Best Value on issues for councils around site restoration.

Background

2. The Financial Audit and Assurance Committee, in monitoring current issues arising in councils, has had an interest in issues for councils arising from the liquidation of Scottish Coal Company Ltd and Aardvark TMC during 2013 both of whom operated opencast coal mines in Scotland.

3. At its meeting on 26 September 2013, the Committee noted that there were particular issues in this regard affecting East Ayrshire Council. Subsequently, the Director of Performance Audit and Best Value has met the Chief Executive of the Council to discuss the matter. He has also, on the Committee’s behalf and in conjunction with the Director of Audit Services, sought to establish, through the annual audit process, the extent of the issue in other Scottish councils.

4. The outcome of this work is the subject of the attached briefing. The briefing’s focus is on any financial implications for councils and, in particular, action taken by East Ayrshire Council. It also highlights a set of broader issues for councils associated with site restoration following other activities such as renewable energy developments, quarries and landfill sites. It is proposed to gather further evidence on the scale and significance of these wider developments and then report back to the Commission.

Conclusion

5. It is recommended that the Commission:

(a) note the attached briefing.

(b) note that the Director will report further to the Commission on wider developments arising from his work.

Opencast coal mining

A briefing for the Accounts Commission

Prepared for the Accounts Commission
March 2015
Audit Scotland is a statutory body set up in April 2000 under the Public Finance and Accountability (Scotland) Act 2000. We help the Auditor General for Scotland and the Accounts Commission check that organisations spending public money use it properly, efficiently and effectively.
Introduction

1. This briefing summarises auditors’ findings from the 2013/14 audit of councils that were affected by the liquidation of Scottish Coal Company Ltd and Aardvark TMC during 2013 both of whom operated opencast coal mines in Scotland. The report’s focus is on any financial implications for councils and, in particular, the action taken East Ayrshire Council. It also highlights a set of broader issues for councils associated with site restoration following other activities such as renewable energy developments, quarries and landfill sites. It is proposed to gather further evidence on the scale and significance of these wider developments and then report back to the Commission.

Opencast coal mining in Scotland

2. At the end of 2013, Scotland had seven opencast coal mines (out of a total of 26 across Great Britain).\(^1\) In 2013, Scottish opencast sites produced one-third of the Great Britain total of 8.58 million tonnes of coal (Exhibit 1). This contrasted with 2012 when 15 Scottish opencast sites contributed almost half (47 per cent) of total British coal production of 10.18 million tonnes.

!Chart showing the number of opencast sites and coal production in Scotland, England, and Wales from 2000 to 2013.

Source: Coal Authority

\(^1\) This included three dormant sites.
3. During 2013, two major operators of opencast coal mines in Scotland (Scottish Coal Company Ltd and Aardvark TMC Ltd, which was owned by ATH Resources plc) went into liquidation. Key factors influencing the economic viability of the opencast coal industry at that time were a decline in the international price of coal and a rise in the cost of transporting coal by rail. At the time of their liquidation, Scottish Coal and Aardvark owned sites in six local authority areas: Dumfries and Galloway, East Ayrshire, Fife, Midlothian, North Lanarkshire and South Lanarkshire.

4. Following the liquidation of Scottish Coal and Aardvark, the liquidators, KPMG, petitioned the Court of Session to abandon certain opencast sites and relinquish responsibility for restoring them and meeting the requirements of environmental licences associated with the sites. These licences related to the protection of water quality and habitats and species. Two councils (East Ayrshire and South Lanarkshire) and the Scottish Environment Protection Agency and Scottish Natural Heritage challenged the petition. On 11 July 2013, the Court of Session found in favour of the petitioners, KPMG. The decision was appealed and, on 12 December 2013, the court concluded that KPMG could not abandon the sites or any of the environmental licences associated with them.

5. Since the liquidation of Scottish Coal and Aardvark, seven Scottish opencast sites (in Dumfries and Galloway, East Ayrshire, Fife and South Lanarkshire) have been acquired by Hargreaves Services who are either conducting mining or restoration works at the sites.

Findings from local authority annual audit reports for 2013/14

6. Auditors from five of the six councils affected by the demise of Scottish Coal and Aardvark commented in their annual audit reports for 2013/14 on opencast coal mining and the possible financial implications for the council (Exhibit 2). There was no reference to any implications of the liquidation of Scottish Coal Company Ltd and Aardvark TMC in the annual audit report of South Lanarkshire Council for 2013/14.

7. The auditor of East Ayrshire Council made extensive comment on the action taken by the council during 2013/14. This reflects the scale of:
   - the impact on the East Ayrshire Council - opencast coal mines in the council area had accounted for 54 per cent of all Scottish and 25 per cent of all British coal production in 2012 (the year before the liquidation of Scottish Coal and Aardvark). 348 people were made redundant from opencast sites in the East Ayrshire Council area
   - the council's response to the liquidation of Scottish Coal and Aardvark which included:
     - appointing a dedicated coal team led by the depute chief executive
     - commissioning an independent investigation into the reasons for the failings chaired by the former chief planner of the Scottish Government
     - holding officers to account for the failings through the disciplinary process. This process resulted in the dismissal of the Head of Planning and Economic Development and the demotion of the Minerals Officer
– taking immediate action to plan and implement improvements in its arrangements for managing open cast mine activities and other similar projects in the future
– negotiating the call-in of financial guarantees over the open cast sites
– increasing resources in the planning service to support the new arrangements
– improving monitoring and reporting arrangements covering open cast mine operations.

8. The relevant extract from the East Ayrshire Council 2013/14 annual audit report is reproduced in full in Appendix 1. East Ayrshire Council’s auditor concluded that while the failings identified by the independent review were significant, the council had acted promptly and robustly in the aftermath of the liquidation of the two opencast coal mining operators.²

<td>• The auditor's report notes that at the end of 2013/14, the council received £8.2 million from a restoration bond associated with the Glenmuckloch opencast site. Following the liquidation of Aardvark TMC, the bond holders agreed to release bond monies to the Council for the restoration. This fund will be used during 2014/15. There is no expectation that the Council will contribute to the restoration works.</td>

works was issued in 2013. Since then the council has been in discussion with a potential purchaser for the site. The council do not consider there to be significant risk from this site given the scale of the restoration works required, the likelihood of future pollution events and the presence of a willing developer.

Implications and further action

9. The liquidation of Scottish Coal Ltd and Aardvark TMC Ltd has had major implications for certain councils. There is no suggestion that individual councils are liable for the full cost of restoring opencast mining sites. The question of how full restoration will be achieved and paid for remains for a number of sites and this will be monitored by auditors during the 2014/15 audit.

10. The situation exposed by the liquidation of Scottish Coal Ltd and Aardvark TMC Ltd for the opencast coal industry and councils has wider implications for other activities where restoration is required after operations have ended. These include renewable energy developments, quarries and landfill sites. It emphasises the importance of councils ensuring that operators have adequate financial resources in place to enable full restoration of sites, both at the time of the start of operation and as operations develop.

11. Alongside, further work on opencast mining restoration we will liaise with auditors and relevant national bodies to gather evidence about the scale and significance of these wider implications for councils.

Extract from the East Ayrshire Council's 2013/14 annual audit report

A number of local authority areas were impacted by the liquidation of the Scottish Coal Company Limited and Aardvark TMC Limited in April 2013. We reported last year that this has a number of serious implications for the council and its communities, including the impact on the landscape, the environment and the economy within East Ayrshire as well as any potential financial consequences for the council.

In May 2013, the East Ayrshire Council's cabinet approved a number of recommendations in response to emerging developments, which have been taken forward, since that time, by the Coal Team, an officer team led by the Depute Chief Executive. In September 2013 the Council received an update on progress, as part of a ‘Steps to Recovery’ paper. This reported the aim of these steps, to minimise the consequences of the liquidation of the operators, and to maximise the potential for restoration of the sites through development opportunities and well managed opencast coal mining.

Independent review

In addition to the work carried out by the officer team, in June 2013, the Council approved the terms of reference for an independent review into the processes and procedures regarding the management, implementation, monitoring and review of the planning processes in relation to opencast coal operations. This included a review of the circumstances that resulted in the failure by the coal operators to restore their opencast coal sites on an ongoing basis in accordance with the restoration plans approved as part of the planning consent. The independent review team was lead by the former Chief Planner of the Scottish Government.

In January 2014 the report of the independent review was presented to a meeting of the Council. Following legal advice, a redacted version of the report was made public at that time.

The report refers to some positive findings which include the support of the local communities for opencast mining in the area, due to the jobs created by the industry. It comments that “if the policies at the local level, reflected in the East Ayrshire Open Cast Subject Plan (EAOCSP) had been applied they would have provided a robust framework for decision making and ensuring progressive restoration.”

The report then goes on to say that “these are far outweighed by major and persistent failings in procedure and practice”. These include:

- staff resources were not commensurate with the regulatory challenges of the industry
- monitoring progress on sites was wholly inadequate, and failed to identify failures to comply with the terms of planning permissions and legal agreements
- there was a failure to appoint independent assessors, paid for by the operators, required by the East Ayrshire Open Cast Subject Plan
• lack of progress with restoration of existing sites was not highlighted when considering planning applications to extend sites
• the process for calculating and monitoring restoration guarantee bonds was wholly deficient and defective
• local forums did not provide effective challenge to the operators practices
• neither elected members nor senior management were provided with any accurate or authoritative assessment of the scale of the problem or the funding required to address it
• the lack of awareness within the senior management team of the environmental damage being caused and the financial implications of the operators actions was difficult to understand or explain. “There is no evidence to suggest that these issues were raised with the Director of Neighbourhood Services or the Chief Executive.”

It concludes that the “failings are many and varied but at their core lie significant and ongoing individual, management and communication failings, particularly within the planning service.”

The Chief Executive presented, to the same meeting, a comprehensive report setting out the council’s response to the key findings and the recommendations included the report.

The Council agreed that the Head of Human Resources would lead a formal disciplinary investigation into each instance of failure to fulfil statutory or professional responsibilities in respect of matters identified in the review report. As part of this process an Assessment Panel of five Members concluded unanimously that there is no case to answer on the part of the Chief Executive.

The Head of Human Resources investigation is now concluded and ongoing disciplinary proceedings reflect the recommendations of this investigation. These proceedings led to the dismissal of the Head of Planning & Economic Development in July 2014 and demotion of the Minerals Officer in August 2014.

Financial implications

In January 2014 it was reported that independent mining engineers’ estimated the total notional cost of restoration for East Ayrshire’s mines as £161 million. The council has no intention that it will bear this cost or any sum of this nature. The council’s view, supported by legal advice, is that it has no legal obligation to carry out restoration work on the vacant mines. The council successfully appealed a Court of Session Judicial Review which enabled the liquidator of the two coal companies to disclaim/abandon their ownership and responsibility for the sites which remain unsold.

Whilst the council view’s is that it accepts no legal responsibility for restoration, it reports that it continues to fulfil its statutory responsibilities in respect of any health and safety or contamination issues which might arise. The costs of fulfilling these responsibilities is not known. Development opportunities and alternative restoration solutions for the sites are being actively pursued by the council. The current situation is that there are six operational opencast mine sites, employing 404 employees, in the area. As well as the operational sites, the liquidators have reached agreement regarding the sale of four sites. Proposals are being developed with the council for the restoration of these sites.

The total value of the 24 bonds in place to address restoration work totals £28.656 million. However, it is unclear to what extent all of the bonds will be honoured. To date twelve bonds have been called formally and following negotiations six have been settled. The council is in discussion with the bond providers for the remaining twelve bonds. The income from these bonds is reflected in the financial statements, as appropriate. The council intends to commence a tendering process (up to the value of the bonds received) to invite organisations to carry out restoration work. The application of the bond monies is to be kept under review by the council.

In May 2014 the council’s Cabinet approved improved arrangements for setting up and monitoring of financial guarantees for such projects. It is reported that these arrangements reflect the emerging issues discussed as part of the Scottish Governments Consultation on Opencast Coal Restoration; Effective Regulation, triggered by the national issues arising from the liquidation of the operators.

Improvements made

A number of progress reports describing actions taken since the independent review have been discussed by the Council. The latest June 2014 report reflects on the scale of the ongoing tasks, and details its priorities to focus activity on “operational opencast coal sites, which addressed the employment of a local workforce and compliant operations, and the calling of bonds which would help facilitate the restoration of both operational and non-operational sites.”

The June report describes progress made in implementing a strengthened Compliance Monitoring Framework for planning applications /consents , for independent compliance assessment of active sites and for regular reporting of activity to the Planning Committee. The framework covers surface mines, quarries, landfill sites, onshore wind farms, electrical infrastructure projects, and other similar projects. To support these arrangements and to respond to an increase in planning applications, three additional planning officers have been employed. The Coal Team and its officers will also be integrated into the Planning and Economic Development Service by October 2014.

Audit conclusions

The liquidation of the two opencast coal mining operators has had an impact on a number of Scottish councils since April 2013. Due to the scale of coal extraction interests in East Ayrshire it has had a significant impact on the council’s priorities and activities since April 2013. The independent review refers to “major and persistent failings in procedure and practice,” in the council’s open cast mining operations. These failings meant that the council was unaware of the scale of the issues that would crystallise for the community and the council until the liquidation of the operators occurred.

Whilst it does not reduce the significance of the failings, since the council identified the issues arising, it has provided a prompt and robust response through:
• appointment of the Coal Team led by the Depute Chief Executive
• an independent investigation on the reasons for the failings
• holding officers to account for the failings through the disciplinary process
• taking immediate action to plan and implement improvements in its arrangements for managing open cast mine activities and other similar projects in the future
• negotiating the call in of financial guarantees over the open cast sites
• increasing resources in the planning service to support the new arrangements
• improving monitoring and reporting arrangements covering open cast mine operations
• working to ensure future proofing in respect of similar activities by the provision of appropriate financial guarantees and monitoring for not only opencast coal sites but for all activities which may have a similar impact.

The complexity and uniqueness of the current situation means that it is not possible to give a definitive view on the likely outcome for the council. The future of a number of sites is still to be resolved. Any impact on the council’s finances will have a consequent impact on the level of resources available for other council services. We will continue to monitor developments and the financial implications of this issue.

ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

MEETING 12 MARCH 2015

REPORT BY THE CONTROLLER OF AUDIT & DIRECTOR OF PERFORMANCE AUDIT AND BEST VALUE

REVIEW OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT ANNUAL AUDIT REPORTS 2013/14

Purpose

1. This paper summarises the outcome of the review of the 2013/14 annual audit reports for councils and related local authority bodies.

Background

2. Under the Code of Audit Practice approved by the Accounts Commission and the Auditor General, auditors are required at the conclusion of the annual audit to issue a report summarising the significant matters arising from the year’s audit. In local government, these reports are addressed to the members of the audited body and the Controller of Audit and are submitted by 31 October each year. The reports are public reports and are available on Audit Scotland’s website.

3. The reports are reviewed by my staff to:
   • identify high-level issues and themes for inclusion in the Commission’s annual local government overview report
   • identify specific issues that the Controller may wish to report to the Commission under his statutory reporting powers. In short, these provide for reports about any matters arising from the accounts of local authorities, or the auditing of those accounts; and, in certain specific situations, involving illegality or loss.

4. In practice, significant issues arising from the audits will be known to my staff in advance of the annual audit reports. However, when such matters are included in the annual audit report, that can be the starting point for statutory reporting.

Matters arising from the review of the 2013/14 annual audit reports

5. General themes arising from the review were reflected in the draft local government overview report, which the Commission considered in February 2015 and published on 5 March 2015.

6. Common themes in annual audit reports included:
   • Audit opinions – none of the accounts was qualified, including the 32 councils, eleven pension funds and 33 other small boards and partnerships. For the first time in 2013/14, there was also a full audit of 125 registered charities’ accounts, where a council or some council members are the sole trustees. All accounts were submitted and audited on time.
   • Financial position – significant funding gaps being reported (but councils use different definitions and timeframes) and the continued need to make substantial savings. Uncertainties continue about the financial consequences of welfare reform.
   • Governance and financial management – the need to ensure that scrutiny and governance arrangements are effective, particularly given some further changes in senior management teams and structures, and greater emphasis on partnership working.

1 Sections 102(1) and 102(3) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973 through community planning partnerships and the new health and social care partnerships.

- Service performance and delivery – the need to make better use of local data and to work with service users and communities to develop options to improve services and help save money.

7. There were issues in five councils that I considered particularly closely:

- East Ayrshire Council – the financial implications for the council of restoration costs of open-cast mining, where the operators went into liquidation in 2013 and an independent report found significant failings in procedure and practice. A briefing report on this is on today’s agenda.

- East Dunbartonshire Council – there are weaknesses in financial controls and in the council’s processes for preparing an annual governance statement. These issues are now being considered as part of the Best Value audit which is currently underway.

- Glasgow City Council – a break down in the system of internal control (ie. notification of when assets become operational) led to double counting assets and therefore significant adjustments in the 2013/14 audited accounts. The council has taken action, including staff training, to prevent this from happening again.

- Midlothian Council – the financial impact of having to demolish newly-built houses where CO2 gas levels were high and council tenants had to be supported to find other homes. I am continuing to monitor the impact of this closely.

- Stirling Council – further audit work was required on the governance arrangements in relation to the council’s application for, and delivery of, an Armed Forces Day event.

Links to other reports that the Commission receives

8. In addition to the annual local government overview report, the Commission receives a range of other reports throughout the year which reflect emerging issues, themes and risks arising from annual audit activity. These include reports on:

- the shared risk assessment process

- current issues in local government, including reports for the Commission’s Financial Audit and Assurance Committee (FAAC)

- the impact of local audit work, reported to the FAAC

- the transparency and quality of audit activity.

9. I will be reporting imminently to the Commission on the outcome of this year’s shared risk assessment process and the proposed Best Value audit activity for the forthcoming year.

10. The recent report for the FAAC on transparency and quality highlighted the main risks identified in the 2013/14 annual audit reports, including:

- Financial statements - the main ones being quality of working papers and draft financial statements and the how property, plant and equipment assets are classified

- Business risks – the main one being workforce management in the context of staff reductions. Also compliance with new LASAAC regulations, capital project slippage, the need to improve budgeting and health and social care integration

- Governance – including weak governance procedures and the need to improve governance arrangements in their charitable trusts. Also a need to improve transparency of external reporting

- Performance – the main two being the quality and timeliness of performance reporting and missing performance targets.
Conclusion

11. The Committee is asked to note the outcome of the review of annual audit reports for local government bodies.
